JAPANESE BODY TOWELS

HOW TO USE: Dip the body towel in tepid water, and apply liquid body soap or cake soap. Froth the soap and wash gently, massaging your skin. After use, rinse the cloth well with water and hand wring it. Then, hang it in the shade to dry. We recommend delicate machine washing 40 degrees into laundry bag.

P.L.A. – CORN FIBER SOFT

The more you use this cloth, the softer its texture becomes. It massages gently and leaves you feeling very refreshed after washing.

RIF JT1

CHARCOAL & CORN FIBER

This body towel is gentle to the skin because it contains Kishu-bincho charcoal. Woven from a yarn blend that includes corn fiber to make it fluffy. Its negative ions have a healing quality and naturally deodorizing effect. Kishu-bincho is the very best charcoal. It is produced using a unique method preserved from ancient times that results in a very hard charcoal that is a Kishu specialty.

RIF JT2

P.L.A. – CORN FIBER HARD

This corn fiber material has a naturally slightly acidic quality and so it is gentle to delicate skin. It makes a marshmallow-soft foam of fine bubbles, to wash your skin gently while retaining needed moisture.

RIF JT3

PAPER & COTTON

The more you use it, the more you appreciate the comfort this body towel delivers. Japanese paper is incredibly durable, and using it on the skin delivers an excellent massaging effect. It absorbs oil very well and so is especially suitable for oily skin.
